OUR STORY

A chance meeting in 1982 between Karen Olson, a marketing executive in New York City, and Millie, a homeless woman on the street, sparked a nationwide movement. On impulse, Karen bought her a sandwich. The woman, Millie, accepted the sandwich but asked for something more – a chance to be heard. Karen listened to what Millie had to say. What she heard convinced her that a simple, personal connection can make a profound difference.

When Karen learned that homelessness was affecting families right in her own community in New Jersey, she decided to leave her marketing career and focus on the issue. Because of their mandate to serve, she reached out to the religious community. Local congregations agreed to use their houses of worship for shelter and meals. The YMCA provided space for showers and a family day center. Volunteers contributed their skills, knowledge, and compassion to help their homeless neighbors find employment, reconnect with society, and restore their dignity. The first interfaith hospitality network opened on October 27, 1986.

As word spread, more New Jersey congregations established a second network, or Affiliate. Other congregations were inspired to develop similar programs in Pennsylvania and Ohio.

In 1988, the National Interfaith Hospitality Network (NIHN) was formed. In addition to shelter, meals, and housing, our Affiliates began developing programs for job skills training, transitional housing, childcare, and homelessness prevention.

In 2003, we changed our name to Family Promise to better reflect the broad range of programs being offered. The name refers to the promise communities make to families in need. But it also refers to the promise, the potential, inherent in every family.

OUR WORK

Our flagship Family Promise Program addresses family homelessness cost-effectively by utilizing existing community resources. Congregations provide space in their buildings to serve as temporary homes. Day centers, where families can take showers, receive case management and look for housing and jobs, can be located at a house of worship or local agency. There are multiple options for transportation to get families from the host congregations to the day center, jobs and school. With volunteers giving their time, making meals, and sharing hospitality, family homelessness is addressed without the creation of expensive shelters.

These volunteers are the core of the program. They share food, spend the night, play with children and lend their passion and expertise to help families get back on their feet. They prove that motivated people can solve family homelessness.

Other core programs include:

- Family Mentoring: trained volunteers provide vital support to families in need as friends, advocates and bridges to the community, helping them achieve sustainable independence.
- Community Initiatives: Affiliates nationwide have created more than 900 targeted partnerships and initiatives to address specific challenges in the fight against homelessness at the local level.
- Just Neighbors: an interactive, educational curriculum that raises awareness of poverty and homelessness while inspiring communities towards engagement.
- Voices Uniting: an advocacy program that mobilizes and supports advocates for public policies that alleviate homelessness and promote economic stability of low-income families.
